Rebekah Ray represents and advises Hawai'i businesses in a wide range of labor and employment law matters before state and federal courts, administrative agencies, and arbitrators.

Prior to joining the firm, Ms. Ray worked at a real estate law firm where she represented condominium associations in various matters including, reviewing and drafting contracts between associations and employees and property management companies, and defending associations against discrimination claims brought by residents.

While in law school, Ms. Ray worked for public interest law organizations including the Hawai'i Innocence Project and the Office of the Public Defender. Ms. Ray also worked at the Hawai'i Immigrant Justice Center at the Legal Aid Society of Hawai'i, where she assisted clients with employment law and other matters.

Ms. Ray received her Bachelor's Degree in Psychology from Arizona State University. She then went on to receive her J.D. from the William S. Richardson School of Law at the University of Hawai'i at Manoa. During law school, she was President of the Advocates for Public Interest Law, and received honors including, the annual APIL grant, and the CALI award in Contract Drafting.

Ms. Ray is admitted to practice before all state and federal courts in Hawai'i.
